

Deborah Robinson

Debbie Robinson was the director of library services at TCC for six and a half years. Before arriving at TCC she held the same position at St. Petersburg College. During her tenure, she was known for her passion for helping students.

Over the course of her career, Debbie held positions in Florida and in Maryland. She was active in Florida library organizations and served as the director of the executive board of the Florida Library Association and the president of the Florida Association of College and Research Libraries.

Debbie was instrumental in developing TCC's EaglePrint print program, which allows students to have access to print, scan and make copies in various locations around the campus. She was also the driving force in creating the Collaboration Room in the library for faculty, staff and students to collaborate and innovate on various projects. This space opened to rave reviews this fall.

Debbie was a native of Pennsylvania who completed her undergraduate studies at the University of Florida and later received her master's degree in Library Science at the University of South Florida. Debbie passed away after a brief illness in June of 2017.
