Course Description:
This 2-day course will address issues and strategies that have developed in learning techniques, focus, and responses to neuroscience that have identified why people do what they do. The course will identify how to determine what are the root causes of shooting shortcomings and officer survival issues. Then hopefully show how to fix them with training. This course will show trainers how to “diagnose shooter issues” and what may work to correct them. Included in this section will be addressing physical aptitude, the discipline of trainee and motivation.

*Ammunition will be provided for each student.

Course Objectives:
- Identify that the key is to train the subconscious mind and build in reactive response cues that trigger the right responses
- Identifying shooter issues is a skill that is developed with great effort by the trainer over time and frequency.
- Trainer development Ideology
